RUSSIA STILL HAS AN ARMY

OYAMA'S TRAP SPRUNG TOO LATE

Russians Claim Main Portion of Kuropatkin's Forces Still Intact and Falling Slowly Back to Tie Pass.

Official information from Russian headquarters in the field, supplemented by dispatches from the Associated Press correspondents with the Russian army, show that Kuropatkin after suffering by far the most severe defeat of the war, has succeeded in extricating the remains of his army from a position which military experts twenty-four hours before believed would result in its annihilation or surrender.

The retreat from Liao Yang has been considered the most masterly ever executed, but it is far overshadowed by this latest feat of the Russian general, who has taken personal command of the troops. After fighting for nearly three weeks, losing in killed, wounded and missing probably a hundred thousand men and a fourth of his artillery, Kuropatkin gathered what was left together north of Mukden and is taking them toward Tie pass through a rain of shrapnel, which is being thrown on them from both right and left. This he seems to have been able to accomplish by resorting to the same tactics which saved his army at Liao Yang. As recently as Thursday last he commenced sending his artillery north by train and road, that night he burned what he realized could not be removed and Friday morning retreat was ordered.

Even hospitals containing the more seriously wounded were left behind so as not to hamper in any way the movement of the army. The movement commenced Friday morning and as the Japanese forces on the east which were to join hands with the western army and cut off the retreat did not cross the Fushun-Mukden road until Saturday morning, the Russians had a full day's start of their pursuers, and, having no guns or baggage to delay them, seem to have made good their escape.

There is still, however, a chance of General Kawamura's army taking a hand in the battle, and should they strike the Russians at Tie pass or cut their communications northward the disaster to Kuropatkin's once fine army will be complete.

What part of his army the Russian general has saved is apparently not known at Russian headquarters. All dispatches indicate that part of his force has been cut off. General Kaulbars seems to have extricated his corps, likewise Bilderling, but not so Linevitch. The Associated Press correspondent says the Japanese separated the first and fourth Russian corps, and adds that help could not be sent them. Their fate is not recorded and the inference is that they have suffered either defeat or capture.

The confidence of the Japanese is shown in the statement published by Oyama to his army early in the week that they would be in Mukden Friday morning. He was true to his word, for early that morning the old Chinese capital was in their hands.

The Russian government and people are as determined as ever to continue the war, the Russian people would resent surrender to the Japanese. Still in Europe outside of Russia there is a feeling that peace will follow this latest disaster to Russian arms.

STILL HAS AN ARMY.

St. Petersburg, March 12, 2 a. m.—Russia still has an army in the far east and its line of retreat is not cut. Oyama's trap again was sprung too late to bag the prey he desired and though pounded on the rear and both flanks by artillery and losing heavily in killed, wounded and prisoners, Kuropatkin with the main portion of his forces intact is falling back slowly to Tie pass, while there a considerable part of his army already has arrived and joined hands with the reserves in preparing a position behind which the beaten army may find shelter.

Kuropatkin himself with the rear guard was reported Saturday afternoon in the vicinity of Syanzyasa, twenty-five miles below Tie pass, having accomplished some fifteen miles of his retreat and being already beyond the Japanese trap originally set.

The Associated Press dispatch from Tie pass was filed with great difficulty by the correspondent, who left Mukden with the rear guard, spent Friday with Kuropatkin and took the long ride to Tie pass Saturday morning, after which he again returned to the front.

RUSSIAN ARMIES OUT OF DANGER.

St. Petersburg, March 11.—A dispatch from Kuropatkin, timed 6 p. m. yesterday, says:

"Retreat of the army was very dangerous, and especially trying for those corps some distance from the Mandarin road. Japanese penetrated far into the mountains in the direction of Tawan. They threatened our troops, but thanks to extraordinary efforts our armies are out of danger."

RUSSIAN LOSSES.

St. Petersburg, March 11.—It was reported in military clubs this evening Kuropatkin has lost 300 guns and about 60,000 prisoners, besides about the same number killed or wounded.

JAPANESE REPORT.

Tokio, March 11, 2 p. m.—Russian forces are now retiring north of Mukden along the railway, evidently badly confused. They are flanked on both sides by Japanese troops in pursuit and are suffering heavy losses.

The Japanese army succeeded in obstructing the line of retreat between Fushun and Tie pass and but a small fraction of Kuropatkin's army will emerge from the disaster.

Minister of War Terauchi has telegraphed his congratulations to Oyama on the victory. Oyama in reply ascribes success to the emperor and gallantry and bravery of officers and men.

Full details of the Russian disaster are still unobtainable here, but it is known casualties and losses in guns and munitions of war are enormous.

A later dispatch from headquarters of the Japanese armies says:

"Our force in Singking direction pursued the enemy as far as Huiyuampao, five miles north of Fughun, and at eleven last night resumed vigorous pursuit of him. To day we captured a few hundred light railroad wagons and other spoils.

"All our forces in the Shakhe river direction entirely dislodged the enemy on the right bank of the Hun river Friday and surrounded the enemy east and north of Mukden.

"At noon March 10 Russians filled the district between the railroad and Mukden road in great confusion and in a state of utter exhaustion.

"Thousands upon thousands of Russians are in the district between San Wa, eight miles north of Mukden, and Mukden, retreating north in miserable condition. Our artillery and infantry in the vicinity are pouring a fierce fire upon them, inflicting heavy damage."

The general staff estimates the number of Russians engaged in the present battle at 300,000 infantry, 26,000 cavalry and 1,368 guns.

London, March 11.—A Tokio dispatch to the Japanese legation says: "A Japanese detachment has reached the Pu river, thirteen miles north of Mukden, and is inflicting considerable damage on the retreating enemy."

COUNT CASSINI STILL FOR WAR.

Washington, March 11.—"After Liao Yang there was talk of peace. Russia's answer was reinforcements. Like Liao Yang, Mukden is the scene of another retreat, and again Russia's answer will be large reinforcements, but of peace, not a word."

This was the emphatic statement of Count Cassini, Russian ambassador, to day in the light of morning dispatches telling of the Russian retreat.

ADMIRAL'S INTENTIONS UNKNOWN.

New York, March 11.—Admiral Rojestvensky is not returning to European waters, according to a Times St. Petersburg dispatch, which asserts battleships in the fleet are unable to pass the Suez canal without unloading. The admiralty declares it is unaware of Rojestvensky's intentions.

KUROPATKIN'S DISPATCH.

St. Petersburg, March 11.—The Associated Press learns the dispatch received by the emperor from Kuropatkin last night, in addition to announcing retreat of the Russian armies, added:

"Our retreat is being conducted with the enemy harassing both our flanks. The second army under Bilderling has suffered heaviest, both in killed, wounded and prisoners. How many are surrounded is unknown. The army is still in danger."

FAVOR DRAFT PROPOSITION.

Bloomington, March 11.—President Holland of the Three-I league to night notified Secretary Farrell of the National association that the Three-I league clubs had voted unanimously in favor of the draft proposition as submitted to minor leagues at the recent meeting in New York.

HEAVY SHORTAGE SHOWN.

Logansport, Ind., March 11.—The report of C. B. Lockhart of the committee who examined the books of D. H. Obenchain, the missing treasurer of Cass county, made to the commissioners this afternoon, shows a shortage of $60,220.

ANARCHISTIC CONDITION PREVAILS

St. Petersburg, March 11.—Advices from Samara say anarchy is reigning there. Authorities are passive. A number of people have been killed by bands of roughs.

BANK STATEMENT.

New York, March 11.—Loans, decrease $1,505,000; deposits, decreased $2,304,000; reserve, increased $1,561,300; surplus increased $838,450.

STOPPED SMUGGLING OF ARMS.

Berlin, March 11.—Active trade in smuggled arms at Ostrowo, Prussia, and Kalisch, Russia, was broken up this week by joint action of Prussian and Russian police. The arms intercepted consisted chiefly of the poorest quality.

A SEVERE COLD

FOR THREE MONTHS.

The following letter from A. J. Nusbaum, of Batesville, Ind., tells its own story: "I suffered for three months with a sever cold. A druggist prepared me some medicine, and a physician prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I then tried Foley's Honey and Tar, and eight doses cured me." Refuse substitutes. For sale by J. A. RETREAT OF RUSSIANS

TROOPS ARE APPROACHING TIE PASS

Story of Kuropatkin's Evacuation of Mukden and Forced March to Fortified Position Where Stand Will Be Made

Tie Pass, March 11, 2 p. m.—For many versts all approaches to Tie Pass are covered with troops, artillery and baggage transports pressing northward, and twenty-five miles away the strong rear guard of troops, personally commanded by Kuropatkin, is retiring slowly, doggedly disputing with the pursuing enemy every foot of ground in attempt to cover the retreat of the remainder of the army.

Losses in this defeat, which is the most bitter yet experienced by the Russian army, by moderate computation is not less than 200,000 men on both sides. The Russians, in addition, sacrificed enormous quantities of munitions and stores, the greater part of which were set on fire before leaving Mukden.

It is impossible to say whether the Russians will be able to put up a fight and hold this position or whether it will be necessary to continue the retreat to Harbin, but the rank and file, whose military qualities never shine so brightly as in retreat and defeat, are far from being panic stricken and under capable leadership and given a brief time to strengthen positions may be able to check their pursuing enemy at this point.

The order to abandon Mukden and retreat to the Tie pass position was given at 9 o'clock on the evening of March 9. At dawn that day the Russians held a line on the Hun river from a point ten miles east of Fushun to Madyapu, the west front extending to a point six miles north of Mukden, a continuous line of battle generally paralleling the railway four or five miles distant. A terrible dust storm raged and the tension had reached its extreme limit. It was realized that if any point of the Russian line gave way all would be lost. The position in most extreme danger appeared to be north of Mukden station, where it seemed for a time the Japanese might break through and entirely cut the lines of retreat. Kuropatkin concentrated heavy columns there, took command himself and succeeded during Thursday morning in forcing the Japanese back from the railroad and also in driving out bodies of Japanese east of the railroad.

The maneuver appeared to point to success when, suddenly and unexpectedly, the news arrived the Japanese had broken through between the first and fourth army corps, taking advantage of the hurricane that was blowing clouds of dust into the faces of the Russians to deliver an attack which the Russians were not prepared to meet. It was impossible to support the Russian corps, as the reserves to the last man had been sent to the line of battle at other points.

As the danger of communications being severed by this attack from the east was imminent retreat was determined upon and immediately begun. The four principal roads leading northward toward Tie pass were completely occupied by a continuous file of artillery and transport and the retreating army blackened the country between. Before beginning the retreat all depots, stores and military buildings were burned and all rolling stock belonging to the main railroad brought away.

About fifteen hundred severely wounded Russians and several hundred Japanese were left at the Mukden hospitals, together with the complete Russian medical staff. The remainder of the wounded were sent northward and a railroad train remained with the rear guard and brought off a train load of those wounded in retreat, many of whom reached Tie pass without their injuries being bandaged.

Mukden station was abandoned at 7 o'clock Friday morning. The retreat was dreary and disagreeable in the extreme. A dust hurricane, blowing directly southward, filled the eyes and faces of the troops, but at the same time tended to blind the enemy and delay pursuit from the south.

The retreating columns were bombarded on both flanks by batteries which it was impossible to silence, shells reaching the Mandarin road from the east with special frequency from Tawan, eight miles north of Mukden, and Pu, five miles further north. Under these circumstances the retreat was conducted with astonishing precision, which was largely due to the personal efforts of Kuropatkin, who, with haggard face and uniform yellow with dust, was everywhere when needed.

At 8 o'clock Friday morning a great explosion which blew up the Hun river bridge and an immense cloud of smoke from the burning settlement gave India rubber testimony of Kuropatkin's decision to relinquish also the second of his great positions.

The army was withdrawing all the latter half of the night. Morning showed through the great smoke clouds, low lying for miles about the settlement, armies three and four files deep in all main roads moving north along the east side of the railway. The battle still centered north of the imperial tombs, with occasional shots along the Hun river, where later an opening permitted the Japanese to make a quick advance and dash toward their main operation with the purpose of concentrating and cutting off the Russians.

At 11:30 the Japanese had partly succeeded, for at Tawan with shrapnel they shelled three sides of the rectangle where the main army was moving. The Japanese, however, accomplished at this place, nothing more than a momentary stampede.

This retreat must be reckoned as a wonderful spectacle, for miles of infantrymen, artillery and baggage wagons to day strewed the line of march. For rapidity the Japanese movements for the first time were outstripped by the Russians in withdrawing. The Russians perhaps had staked more on the combined opinions of its commanders and risked more than in any previous battle with the Japanese.

The crucial point of the retreat occurred at dusk, when the rear guard troops and transport, which had reached Santaitz, ten miles north of Mukden, suddenly received a rifle and grenade assault from Japanese cavalry, which caused a stampede. The success of the Japanese inclosing against the armies trying to get away from the extended Hun river bridge position was evident.

In ordering the retreat Kuropatkin is said to have declared it was done in order to satisfy protesting opinion and that whatever the blame he would take it, which in the light of events seems to show that he best knew the capacity of the soldiers.

The battle on the right flank and around Mukden appears to have been the greatest of the war except Port Arthur. During the terrible dust storm Thursday the Japanese with machine guns occupied several houses in a village held by the Russians and otherwise bettered their position west of the railroad so that when retreat came with Japanese shells on all sides it suggested another Cronje incident.

For ten hours not a man nor horse rested while the wounded were being gathered upon two sides, in the rear and often in the center, and every energy was bent toward getting out of a trap the paws of which were almost upon the Russians. Forty miles of retreat was accomplished in seventeen hours. It was virtually through ploughed fields, with enormous dust clouds which made it impossible to see any distance. A great amount of equipage, ammunition, guns and stores of the Russians were lost.

Losses of men on both sides are reckoned at 100,000 for the entire fight.

The troops composing the rear guard fought with extraordinary bravery under the eyes of the commander-in-chief and the morale of the entire army under the circumstances was excellent.

The cause of the Mukden defeat is attributed to many reasons, one of the most important of which is insufficient information concerning the Japanese and their strength, which was far in excess of Russian calculations.

PROFOUND ANXIETY.

Paris, March 11.—The government's advices from St. Petersburg say that the most profound anxiety prevails in the highest quarters there concerning the desperate nature of the situation in Manchuria. Russian military and political quarters are practically cut off from all details except those contained in dispatches published in the American, British and French press. This absence of official information has heightened the anxiety to an intense pitch and gives rise to sinister forebodings concerning Kuropatkin's ability to extricate his army from its perilous position. Therefore official dispatches from St. Petersburg, while failing to give any details of the battle, reflect the extreme apprehension felt throughout Russian officialdom. There is a similar feeling of apprehension in official quarters here, where attention is centered on the final outcome of the battle. French officials are inclined to believe the struggle will continue three or four days longer before results are attained that may prove decisive upon the whole war. Before Mukden was captured it was believed Kuropatkin would succeed in cutting his way northward and concentrate his troops for a supreme struggle at Harbin, but the latest advices begin to incline officials to take the view that Kuropatkin's defeat may reach the magnitude of a crushing disaster from which this army will be unable to recover. Consequently the events of the next four days will be watched with intense interest as likely to lead to the turning point of the war.

Paris, March 11.—Vice Admiral Doubassoff, who has arrived here from London on his way to St. Petersburg, in an interview says Rojestvensky's squadron is not returning to the Baltic sea, but is simply cruising and awaiting the arrival of the third squadron. When junction is made they will proceed immediately to the far east.

BANKER DISAPPEARS.

Des Moines, March 11.—E. E. Snyder, the Olin banker who made an assignment last December, has disappeared and is a fugitive from justice. A warrant has been issued for his arrest, but when an attempt was made to serve it it was found that Snyder and wife had departed. The completed report shows Snyder's liabilities are $143,000, most of which were bank deposits. The creditors will not receive more than 10 to 15 cents on the dollar.

DEATHS.

New York, March 11.—Henry Norcross Munn, editor of the Scientific American, is dead at his home in this city.

HAD PASSPORT

Man who was Killed by Bomb in Russian Hotel Carried Fictitious English Papers.

St. Petersburg, March 11.—Explosion of a bomb at the Hotel Bristol, adjoining the Hotel Dangleterre, just before daylight this morning blew to atoms the owner of the bomb, with an English passport giving the name of Alfred Henry McCullough, wrecked adjoining rooms, killing the wife of an officer and injuring several other lodgers. There is not the slightest doubt the man killed was connected with terrorist plots.

The police believe McCullough was engaged either in packing his effects, as the Hotel Bristol was to be vacated to day, or in preparing for some desperate enterprise to day when the bomb, which, like all infernal machines of the terrorists, was provided with gravity tubes, fell and exploded. McCullough's passport was fictitious, but he was a foreigner, not a Russian.

FINED FOR ASSAULT.

Fort Madison, Iowa, March 11.—Arthur E. Ireland, organizer for the American Federation of Labor, who was convicted of assault upon Axel Matheson, a non-union machinist, last July, was to day sentenced to pay a fine of $200 and costs of trial, amounting to about $1,000, and to stand committed to jail until the fine and costs are paid. Ireland is under indictment on a similar charge at Arkansas City, Kan., and his trial has been set for March 14 at Winfield, Kan. Ireland was defended by Frank T. Mulholland, of Toledo, Ohio, general counsel for the International Association of Allied Metal Workers.

Diffenbaugh, the chairman of the board of supervisors of Warren county, an injunction was issued this afternoon restraining the Standard Oil company and the Prairie State Oil and Gas company from further prosecuting the work of laying a pipe line through this county. The action was taken in accordance with instructions of the board of supervisors to prevent the construction of the line or to secure to the county reasonable recompensation therefor.

CONTEST DREW CROWD.

Saturday afternoon a great throng of little ones gathered at the popular Andre & Andre store to hear the award in their great "Ten Reasons Why" contest, which has been agitating the minds of the future housekeepers of the city for the past several weeks. Hundreds of lists of reasons were sent in, and the judges, Mrs. J. G. Reynolds, Mrs. B. H. Leavenworth and Mrs. George T. Douglas, had much difficulty in coming to a conclusion, but finally awarded the first prize, the attractive Buck's Junior Range, to Miss Genevieve Sehy; the second prize, a lovely hand painted cup and saucer, to Miss Beulah Smith, and the third, a handsome picture, to Miss Ila Weatherford.

After the awarding of the prizes, the children gathered on the walk in front of the store, and a view of the group was taken by R. L. McCullough of the firm of McCullough Bros.

MRS. CHADWICK FOUND GUILTY

OF CONSPIRACY TO DEFRAUD UNITED STATES

Took Jury Only Two Hours to Reach Verdict—Prisoner Has Attack of Hysteria After Leaving Court Room.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 11.—Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick was to night found guilty of conspiring to defraud the United States. She was found guilty on every count of the indictment upon which the jury was at liberty to judge her—seven in all.

The original indictment contained sixteen counts. Two of these were ruled out during the trial by Judge Taylor and of the remaining fourteen one-half charged her with securing certification of checks without having the proper entries made upon the books of the bank. Judge Taylor in his charge directed the jury to disregard these counts and consider only the remaining seven, which related to certification with no funds on deposit. On all of them the jury found against her. Under the law she can be fined on each count not more than $10,000 or imprisoned more than two years on each count, or she may be fined a maximum of $10,000 and also imprisoned for two years on each count.

The jury retired at 3:30 and two hours later had agreed upon the verdict, but it was not reported to the court until 8:30 to night. Mrs. Chadwick came into court about five minutes before the jury, accompanied by her son, Emil Hoover, and two nurses. There were few persons in the court room at the time. After the usual preliminaries the verdict was read and the jury immediately discharged.

The court officials spoke in such low tones that Mrs. Chadwick, who is slightly deaf, did not understand. She shot a quick glance at Judge Wing, who was close at her side. The sorrowful expression of his face told more than the words with which he responded to her look of appeal.

"We have lost, Mrs. Chadwick," was all he said.

This time she realized it. She turned half around to look at Emil Hoover, and reading there confirmation to the words of Judge Wing, she flushed deeply and raised her hand in a bewildered fashion to her head. Suddenly her limbs seemed to give way beneath her and she sank feebly into her chair. Her head fell forward on her hands and a succession of strangling sobs came from her throat, while Emil and Judge Wing sought vainly to comfort her.

District Attorney Sullivan moved for sentence and Judge Wing, for the defendant, asked for a new trial. Judge Taylor announced that he would at another time set a date for argument on Wing's motion.

Mrs. Chadwick soon compposed herself, raised her head, wiped her eyes and rose to her feet with an air of bidding defiance to all the world. Attended by Deputy Marshal Clobitz, Emil Hoover and Judge Wing, she walked to the hallway to take the elevator. It was not these and in the slight delay Mrs. Chadwick's composure deserted her utterly. She violently threw off the arm of Deputy Marshal Clobitz and that of her son, exclaiming: "Let me go. Oh, my God! let me go."

She tottered in weakness and Clobitz, together with Deputy Marshal Minder, stepped quickly to her side. "I am not guilty," she exclaimed, and then with all the energy gone from her voice she moaned again and again: "Oh, let me go, let me go. I am not guilty, I tell you; let me go."

Suddenly she fell against Judge Wing. He caught her by the shoulders and kept her from falling until Deputy Marshal Minder came up on the other side. Together the two men lifted her bodily and bore her into the elevator, which descended one floor, and she was taken half walking and half carried into the office of United States Marshal Chandler and placed upon a sofa. An attack of hysteria followed that lasted fully fifteen minutes, her sobs and cries being distinctly audible in the hall outside. Restoratives were applied and after she had recovered she was taken to jail.

NEW YORK STRIKE

Conditions Not Yet Normal—Company will Not Take Back Men Over 40.

New York, March 11.—Although nearly two days have passed since local leaders of unions involved in the big street railway strike were repudiated by their national officers and the strikers ordered back to work, conditions on affected lines have not become normal. Trains were running to day on every branch of the Interborough Rapid Transit company's system, but on reduced and in some cases irregular schedules.

It seems probable now many of the striking employes of the company never will be re-employed. It is announced all taken back must return as individuals, and it is said the company has decided not to take any men over forty years old. If this plan is carried out it will affect hundreds of men who have been employed on the elevated for many years.

Realizing that their fight against the Interborough company was lost, the old employes to day crowded the offices of the company seeking their former positions. Of three thousand men who applied for reinstatement not more than five hundred were accepted. Jencks and Peeper, strike leaders, admit the fight is lost and advised the men to get back their positions if they could. The strikers bitterly denounced their leaders, saying the men were deceived by them.

ATHLETIC MEET

Milwaukee, March 11.—The Central Y. M. C. A. of Chicago carried off the banner at the big indoor athletic meet of the Central association A. A. U. to night, capturing 28 points. The University of Wisconsin was second with 24; Chicago Athletic association, third, 22; Notre Dame, 11; Milwaukee, 8; Beloit college, 3. The others were scattering and divided between high schools and academies.

Perhaps the feature of the card was the establishing of two new records by representatives of the Chicago Athletic association. Ralph Rose, the phenomenal shot putter, threw the 16-pound weight in competition 48 feet ½ inch. The former indoor record was 41 feet 8 inches. Rose outdid himself in an exhibition throw after the event, throwing the weight 48 5½ inches.

Leroy Sempse, of the Chicago A. A., made a new high mark in the pole vault, clearing the bar at 11 feet 3½ inches.

A. Rose, also of Chicago, won the half mile in 2:02 1-5, within one-fifth second of tying the record.

A remarkable performance was made by Archie Hahn, of Milwaukee, when in the final of the 75-yard dash he equalled the world's record of :07 3-5 and established a new indoor record by one-quarter of a second.

In the quarter-mile run Frank Waller of the University of Wisconsin, made the distance in 52 seconds, breaking the indoor record by three-fifths of a second.

MICHIGAN-PURDUE.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 11.—The University of Michigan defeated Purdue to night in an indoor track meet 54 to 10. Michigan's victory was the greatest indoor score on record at Michigan. In only three events—pole vault, 16-pound shot put and high jump—did Purdue score. In the jump and shot-put Purdue scored seconds, Michigan having only one entry. The pole vaulting was the best work ever done at Michigan. Glover represented Purdue and Fischleigh Michigan. Both missed seven trials at 11 feet 3 inches and the event went to Glover at 11 feet 3 inches.

FLOOR COLLAPSED; ONE KILLED.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 11.—August Ober was killed and three other men injured by collapse of a floor of the Cleveland Machine Knife company's building to day. About twenty men fell with the floor.

CRESCENT CITY DERBY.

New Orleans, March 11.—Jockey Martin's perfect riding landed M. L. Hayman's colt Right Royal a length and a half in front of his field in the ninth Crescent City derby, worth $7,105 to the winner, this afternoon. Tranter was the favorite at 7 to 5 and also ran.

The Crescent derby, mile and an eighth: Right Royal, 3 to 1, won; Jake Sanders, 6 to 1, second; King's Trophy, 13 to 5, third. Time, 1:59 2-5.

MAY ABOLISH BOARD

Hostetter, Deposed Secretary of Farmer's Institute, Has Carried Fight Into Legislature—Investigation May Be Asked

Ousted bodily, but not suppressed, A. B. Hostetter, the deposed secretary of the Illinois Farmers' institute, has carried his fight against the institute board of directors into the legislature, with a view to abolishing the board. In any event, this is the object of a bill which has been introduced in the senate by Senator McKenzie, after a consultation with Hostetter.

Hostetter expects the Illinois senate to voluntarily investigate the office of the State Farmers' Institute. If the senate does not act voluntarily, Hostetter will ask for an investigation on the ground that it has been charged he changed the records and misapplied different funds.

The new measure provides a superintendent of institutes to be appointed by the governor, to take the place of the large and cumbersome board of directors, which is composed at present of thirty members. It is further provided that all money to be used for institute work shall be drawn through the state auditor and through the board of directors of the institute. This portion of the bill would do away with the plan that has been in vogue by the directors of the state institute of transferring from one fund to another at will.

DEAN DAVENPORT INTERESTED.

To prevent the advertisement of phosphate rock, or the product of any other concern at the county institutes, the new measure provides for the employment as instructors at the institutes of practical farmers, horticulturists and dairymen.

The name of Dean Davenport of the University of Illinois has been added to those of other state employes and members of the farmers' institute board who are stockholders in the big million dollar corporation which owns 10,000 acres of phosphate rock land in Tennessee.

The whole story of the trouble between Hostatter and his board of directors is gradually coming out. According to stories in circulation, the desire of the institute board to unload the free libraries is due to a desire to give Mrs. James Frake, wife of one of the members of the board, a state job.

Mrs. Frake is president of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, which has a system of free libraries of its own, and which is independent of the farmers' institute free libraries. A bill now is pending in the legislature which places the libraries of the federation of women's clubs under control of a state library board to be composed of five members, two of whom shall be women.

BILL EXPECTED TO PASS.

The farmers' institute board already has adopted a resolution to turn over its system of free libraries to the federation of women's clubs, in the event that the pending bill becomes a law. Presuming that the library bill will pass, the board of directors of the farmers' institute asked for an appropriation this time to maintain its system of libraries. Last year the institute had 251 libraries, with a total of 11,000 volumes. Identified with Mrs. Frake in the interest of the bill creating a state board to control the free libraries is a Mrs. McGrue and a Mrs. Everly, both prominent in federation club work in the city of Chicago.

One of the reasons to be urged why the institute's board of directors shall be abolished is that the ten members from Cook county nearly always control action by the board. The ten members stand together on various propositions that are presented, it is alleged, and get whatever they want, even though the county they represent contains the smallest per cent of agricultural constituency of the state.

HALL INTERESTED INCORPORATION

Dr. Frank H. Hall, of Auroth, whose office of superintendent was consolidated with that of secretary by the institute directors, receives $1,600 for seven months' work as superintendent. When Hall was made secretary and superintendent nothing was said about his salary. Hostetter's salary was $2,000 a year. An attempt to consolidate the salaries will be bitterly resisted. The new secretary-superintendent also is a stockholder in the crushed phosphate rock company.

The five months of the year when Hall is not engaged as superintendent of the farmers' institute, he spends his time at county teachers' institutes as an instructor, for which he usually receives $100 a week. It is said that the institute work of the farmers and teachers have worked in well together for Hall, who is the author of an arithmetic which he sells while giving instructions at the teachers' institutes.

THE WOMAN'S CLUB.

Splendid Address Delivered by Dr. J. B. Harker—Committees are Named by New President—Remarks by Supt. Gastman.

The first meeting of the Woman's club, under the administration of Dr. Grace Dewey, was held at the Woman's college Saturday afternoon and was well attended. Music, which added greatly to the pleasure of the afternoon, was furnished by Miss Stockdale in two piano numbers, "Spring Song" by Kjerulf, and "Hungarian Song," by McDowell. Misses Carrie Dunlap and Hazel Brown played two lovely duets (violin), "Largo," by Handel, and "Valse-Serenade," by Alfons Czibulka.

The following new members were elected: Mrs. C. M. Thompson, Mrs. Elizabeth K. Leavenworth, Miss Dora Depew, Miss Lona Kuechler, Mrs. Robert L. Gonsalves and Mrs. Joseph Gomes.

The following committees were announced:

Mrs. David Reid, chairman of the kindergarten association.

House—Mrs. John J. Reeve, Mrs. William Newman and Mrs. Carlton Taylor.

Social—Mrs. Gus Hoffman, Mrs. A. L. Adams, Mrs. Kate Hollinger, Mrs. A. W. Baldwin, Mrs. H. L. Griswold, Miss Bertha Anderson, Miss Ruth Widenham.

Courtesy—Mrs. H. M. Havenhill, Mrs. Albert Duckett and Mrs. C. H. Hackett.

Press—Mrs. Jennie Devitt, Mrs. P. C. Thompson, Miss Ruby Neville and Miss Isabelle Smith.

Civics and Philanthrophy—Mrs. James Parsons, Dr. Josephine Milligan and Mrs. Helen Jordan.

Auditing—Mrs. J. W. Brown and Mrs. A. D. Brackett.

The afternoon was in charge of the educational department of the club and provided a treat in the address of the afternoon. The committee was very fortunate in securing Dr. Joseph R. Harker, of the Woman's college. Dr. Harker opened the book of memory that has been writing itself for nearly thirty-five years in high school work, in the care of the boys' academy and finally in the Young Woman's college, and read from its pages which are rich in experiences. After a graceful tribute to the honored guest of the club, Mr. Gastman, Dr. Harker spoke on "Thirty Years of Educational Progress in Illinois." He first touched upon his own early experiences as a teacher and upon the faulty laws which govern the issuing of certificates of teachers. He next spoke of the wonderful growth of the high school in the last thirty years. If the development of the high school has been marvelous, the development of the college has been more so. He spoke at length on the development of the higher or college education in Illinois, and said that the problem of the small college is the problem that confronts educators to day, comparing its condition of thirty years ago. He spoke of its lack of funds, its poorly equipped labratory and its difficulties.

The education of women in the last thirty years was the last and most interesting chapter in this address and the speaker said in fifteen years the gain has been 250 per cent.

Dr. Harker, in closing, spoke of the demand for women of an institution of their own and of its peculiar advantages.

Mr. Gastman was then called upon and spoke briefly.

The chairman of the kindergarten board then spoke of the plan of the organization of the kindergarten association, which should be auxiliary of the Woman's club.

HAIR TELLS CHARACTER.

Color of Hair Said to Indicate a Person's Temperament.

Many people believe that blonde or light hair denotes affection and dark hair constancy. A person without hair is not devoid of character, far from it. The disposition of the average baldheaded man is to show such solicitude for the welfare of others, that he neglects himself. A germ causes baldness. Prof. Sabouraud, of Paris, France, inoculated a rabbit with Dandruff germs, causing it to become totally bald in five weeks' time. To rid the scalp of these dangerous germs it is necessary to apply Newbro's Herpicide.

REAL ESTATE, LOANS, Fire Insurance

We have several large amounts of money on hand for local loans.

We are now writing a fine line of all kinds of bonds, anything from a butcher to a mayor or alderman.

All kinds of fire, lightning or tornado insurance on either buildings, stocks or rolling stock. Don't forget us.

We are sole agents for cotton and corn lands in the Great Mississippi Delta, the richest farming lands in the world. These lands have raised in price from two to ten dollars an acre in seven years, and are still advancing. There is no reason why they should not treble in value within the next ten years.

The finest investment for small buyers on the market. Better than all kinds of gambling stocks, and something that we are not afraid to place our reputation behind. Put your money in and forget it. Wake up and find that you have a fortune. No man or woman can make a mistake in buying southern lands.

The new railroads and canals have opened this country within the last ten years and that is the reason why it is coming to the front. We will take any number of people down at any time, but prefer to take them down on the first and third Tuesdays of each month on account of reduced fare. BUILDING WITHOUT WOOD.

Two Baltimore architects have drawn plans for a building entirely without wood. It will be six stories, and will have a frontage of 41.5 feet. The entire structure is to be of reinforced concrete and steel. Even the doors, trims, window sashes and door jambs are to be of metal. The windows will be glazed with wire glass. The frame for the show windows will be of steel, into which the plate glass will be fitted. The side walls, columns and rear walls, as well as the supporting columns of the front walls, will be of concrete. The floors will have a top dressing of cement one and a half inches thick. The stairs will be of concrete, with slate treads and wrought iron balustrades. The elevator shaft will be of concrete, as will also the inclosure round the stairway and the elevator hall. The cellar and roof are to be of cement. In order to eliminate all wood even the flagstaffs on top will be of steel.

FOR THE CURE OF CONSUMPTION

National Fraternal Sanitorium to Be Located in the Southwest—Site Soon to Be Determined—The Plan of Operation

A committee of prominent physicians recently left St. Louis for the purpose of selecting a suitable site for a National Fraternal Sanitorium for consumptives. Among the members of the committee were Dr. A. H. Warner, of Topeka, Kans.; Dr. W. H. Mayfield and Dr. M. P. Woody, of St. Louis; W. R. Edson, president, and August Schlafly, treasurer of the corporation, and both of St. Louis.

The committee confined their visit to Texas and New Mexico, and among the cities visited were Santa Fe, Las Vegas, Albuquerque, El Paso, Carlsbad, Roswell and Almagordo.

The result of their investigations will not be made known until government statistics have corroborated the water and climatic conditions.

The sanitorium will be open to all fraternalists, patients being sent to the institution as guests of their respective orders with a minimum personal expense. The sanitorium is to be operated on the municipal ownership plan.

Besides fraternalists the sanitorium will be open to all churches, clubs, cites, counties and states in the United States, who contribute a per capita tax of 1 cent a month a member, and to all union men of every occupation, as well as such other organizations as contribute a per capita tax.

Chairman Eidson of the committee, in speaking of the trip, said:

"Our visit to New Mexico has demonstrated beyond doubt that consumption can be cured. We interviewed more than 1,000 people in the fifteen cities we visited. Many of them had been given up by their physicians in the east and were brought to New Mexico on stretchers. There the bright sunshine and pure air restored them to health."

Dr. W. H. Mayfield was equally enthusiastic over the trip. He said:

"I found in New Mexico the cream of the professional men of the east and north, who, driven there against their will, wrecks from overwork and consumption, are now in love with the country and enjoying perfect health. I talked with physicians from New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, Chicago and St. Louis, who said that they did not believe that such cures were possible until they had themselves been cured.

"One of the most pathetic sights imaginable is the young man with a little money in his pocket and a bad cough, who gets off the train in the southwest, and, finding the hotels and private houses closed against him, takes the train home to die."

"New Mexico is one grand sanitarium," exclaimed Col. F. H. Buzzacott. He said that in all his military experience he has rarely found in the United States or abroad such magnificent camping sites, some of which were of such vast size as would bivouac, if necessary, an entire army.

A well known local physician of prominence is interested in the location of the above sanitorium, a movement that has every indication of having far-reaching effects.

AT THE GRAND.

"The Girl from Kays" was the offering at the Grand Saturday evening and the production gave satisfaction. The play is a farcical comedy with music, and while the latter feature is not strongly portrayed, the comedy element in the piece is well met and Jack Bernard, in the role of Max Hoggenheimer, and Benjamin Howard, as Harry Gordon, proved themselves capable actors. Clara Palmer, in the title role, was also clever and the supporting cast was adequate.

FUNERAL OF J. W. RANSON.

Brief funeral services over the remains of J. W. Ranson will be held at Franklin at 9:30 this morning, with the Masons in charge. More extended services will be held at Asbury church northeast of the city about 12 o'clock.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Next Meeting Will Be Held Friday Evening at Public Library —Paper by Mr. Ensley Moore

The next meeting of the Morgan county Historical society will be held at the public library Friday evening, March 17. The three papers read at the last meeting will be topics for discussion and additional information along the lines covered by the papers will be welcomed. The subjects so ably treated at the last meeting were as follows: "Origin of the Congregational Church in Morgan County," "Origin of the Public School System in Morgan County," and "The First White Settlers in Morgan County."

The paper of the evening will be presented by Mr. Ensley Moore. Mr. Moore has given a great deal of attention to historical research and has much valuable data in his extensive library. He has been a close observer of the events that have contributed to the growth and development of the city and county for the past quarter of a century and his natural interest in historical subjects has made him inquisitive and many facts have been learend by him from a former generation. The paper by Mr. Moore will no doubt be one of deep interest.

All members of the society are urged to be present at this March meeting.

ADDRESS AT HIGH SCHOOL.

Supt. E. A. Gastman, of the Decatur public schools, lectured to the teachers of the city schools in the high school auditorium Saturday afternoon. The attendance was large and deep interest in the discussion of the eminent educator was manifested.

Professor Gastman took for his theme the main points discussed in the recent superintendents' meeting held at Milwaukee. He took up in order the regular topics of the program, discussing particularly the unusual phases of the addresses given, and those in which he was particularly interested.

The address of Superintendent Carr, of Anderson, Ind., on "How Can We Increase the Efficiency of School Work" was discussed at length, as was also the address of Prof. J. Stanley Hall, given at a meeting of the educators held after the regular sessions had closed, in which he stated that the most deplorable condition of our schools was the inefficient teaching of language, not only in our common schools, but also in our colleges and universities. The fault, he said, was in dwelling more upon the form than upon the content, and demanded radical treatment.

The address of the venerable superintendent was of a very practical nature and as such was greatly appreciated.

THE MAY FESTIVAL.

"Will there be a May festival this year?" "Who will be your artists?" Other such inquiries have been made from time to time and the more frequently since spring has come. This is encouraging for all who want the choral works of the great masters carried out by our own citizens. Our city may soon be known far and wide for her musical culture as well as for learning and muscal culture. The Mendelssohn club will give Handel's The Messiah at the May festival this year, which will take place May 2 and 3. There will be two artist recitals, besides the grand chorus concert, and the public is kindly requested to reserve these dates and co-operate in making these events of unusual interest for our city, attracting to us many from central Illinois towns and cities. Such is the case elsewhere where these festivals are annually held. The artists will be Mrs. Ada M. Sheffield, soprano; Mrs. Brackon, contralto; Mr. J. R. Miller, tenor; Mr. Wm. Beard, basso, and Mrs. Jennette Durno Collins, pianist. Mrs. Brackon and Mr. Miller will also appear together at the artist recital, and the entire quartet at the Messiah concert. Mrs. Collins will likewise give an artist recital.

The Good Effect of Good Clothes.

The story is told of a certain society lady that whenever she felt depressed or gloomy, she would array herself in her most expensive finery, and, presto! gloom took wing and the sunshine of good cheer entered in its place. This woman knew that the members of her sex are always in a happy frame of mind when they are exceedingly well groomed, and reasoning backward, she drew up this law: "If you have the Blues, dress up." The thought may seem far-fetched to some at first glance, but look at it from another point of view and it will not appear so. Haven't you, dear reader, bought a garment that seemed to fit your desires as well as your figure, only to discover in a few days that your judgment had misled you? That the garment had lost all its glamor and didn't fit so well as you thought? And what was the effect on you? Surely a depression of spirits, a loss of cheer—a case of the blues. That is the natural effect—if one is human. On the other hand, you may have bought a garment of beauty that proved to be a joy even unto the day when it was replaced by a newer style. The effect of such a garment was to gladden your heart with a happiness that came fresh every day. It is reasonable to suppose that the maker of a garment that so fully met your desires IS THE ONE to do so again, and so you look for a certain label or brand or mark that identifies the product. It is by this process that the WORTH SKIRT became a name to conjure with. The WORTH SKIRT has always reflected an admirable blending of fit and beauty—an irreproachable mastery of style. Its lines are so firm and sure as to spell dignity and it fits the figure so faultlessly as to become a gracious harmony of all beholders. The satisfaction of a gracefully rounded figure and the distinguished bearing produced by a WORTH SKIRT is revealed by the wearer in the sparkle of the eye and the buoyancy of the step—so easily are we influenced. The COMFORT derived by the wearer of a WORTH SKIRT makes it doubly delightful and the REASONABLE PRICE deserves more than perfunctory notice.

A NEW MOON OF JUPITER.

Professor Perrine's discovery of a sixth satellite or moon of Jupiter, announced from Lick observatory on Jan. 7, is another of the many advances in astronomical science accomplished by the aid of photography. The discovery was made by using the Crossley reflector, a telescope which has a three foot reflecting mirror instead of the more usual lenses. This telescope has been at Lick observatory for a number of years and in 1899 was remounted and soon after used with marked success in the photography of stellar nebulae. The new satellite of Jupiter was discovered in the course of a photographic investigation where an unknown body which changed its position was seen on the photographic plate. Subsequent investigation showed that this was a new satellite of Jupiter and was much farther away from the planet than the five others. It is interesting to record that the fifth satellite of Jupiter was also discovered at Lick observatory, it being found by Professor Barnard in 1892. The others date back to 1610 and first were seen by Galilei. — Harper's Weekly.

Mark Twain's Fame.

Clifford Johnson has this interesting account of the early days of Mark Twain in Outing: "When I returned to Hannibal, Mo., I met other old time acquaintances of the humorist. According to two ancients whom I interrupted in an endless series of checker games at the back of a store, Mark Twain is the most overrated man in America. 'There's about as much truth in those sayings in his books,' I was informed, 'as there is in a ten cent novel. His brother Orion, who was a printer, knew more in a minute than Sam ever did know, and yet Orion never made no reputation. As a boy Sam was just like other boys, except he might have been a little slower. He was considered blamed dull, to tell you the truth. It was his peculiar drawl and accent that made him famous, I'll be dogged if it wan't.'"

Fireworks and the Fourth.

Chief Champion of Chicago's fire department is aiding in the movement in that city for a "safe and sane" Fourth of July by urging proper restrictions upon the sale of fireworks. Chief Campion classes fireworks as good and bad, and in the latter class he places dynamite caps, giant firecrackers, blank cartridges, toy pistols and toy cannon. Any city that succeeds in banishing this class of fireworks from its Fourth of July celebration will be reasonably safe as regards fires and serious or fatal accidents, such as our present noisy Fourth usually entails.—New York Tribune.

COD LIVER OIL TRANSFORMED BY CHEMISTRY

Made Palatable and Digestible While Retaining All Its Medicinal Qualities.

The chemist, adding to the sum of human knowledge as the latter years go by, may yet solve the secrets of human existence. In the work that may come to this result he is continually analyzing, separating, building —in his toilsome effort to find what is good and bad, and why. In no branch of chemistry is this truer than in the department of medicine. If there has been to the whole a difficulty of administration, or an unpleasantness of taste, or some other property that has hindered in its common youth, and it be found that the actual medicinal parts may be disassociated from this unpleasantness or difficulty, then the chemist who makes the discovery has proven his value to his race.

No one will dispute the curative value of cod liver oil. For centuries it has been recognized as the grandest of all body-building agents for wasted human strength and vitality.

Yet a great deal of the good that should have been derived from its use has been prevented by the fact that many patients who were weakened by disease could not digest the heavy oil, either in its raw form or in an emulsion, and others would not take it on account of its disagreeable odor and taste.

It appears that the medicinal elements of which there are about fifty different kinds found in the cod's liver, represent all the tonic, body-building and curative powers of this famous old remedy.

After twenty years' study two eminent French chemists, Mourgues and Gautier by name, discovered a way to separate these medicinal elements from the oil and livers, and gave to modern medicine all the valuable part of cod liver oil, unencumbered by the useless, oily, greasy part.

A preparation containing all these medicinal elements, but entirely free from oil or grease, therefore must be the best tonic reconstructor possible. Such is Vinol.

In no way does Vinol resemble cod liver oil. It does not look, nor smell, nor taste like cod liver oil.

"KUROPATKIN'S EYE."

Carnival of Blood In Storming of Hill Named For the General.

GALLANT DEEDS ON BOTH SIDES

Sublime Courage of a Russian Officer Who Exposed Himself to Japanese Sharpshooters—Bravery of the Mikado's Infantry—General Kuroki's Tribute to the Gallantry of His Foe.

M. H. Donohoe, a war correspondent of the London Chronicle in Manchuria, sends the following description of a desperate battle on a hill between the Russian and Japanese forces, says the London correspondent of the Philadelphia North American:

Somebody had christened the hill "Kuropatkin's Eye," and for want of a more euphonious one the title had clung to it. The name appealed to General Kuroki, and it now appears officially in the Japanese maps. There is little to distinguish the hill from its neighbors unless it be that it is lowlier, less pretentious than they. A village nestled at the foot of its eastern slope. Its south face was furrowed by a deep donga, into the sides of which the Russians had burrowed a series of shelter trenches that irresistibly recalled Paardeberg.

A razorbacked ridge crowned the top, and on its half mile or so of surface more men have been killed in action than perhaps on any corresponding area in the whole of Manchuria. From the center of the ridge rose a rocky protuberance resembling in shape the hump on a camel's back.

When the Japanese bombarded the hill a Russian officer was stationed in this natural conning tower in order to direct the first of the Russian guns. As he stood there he was the constant target for Japanese sharpshooters and gunners alike. He seemed to bear a charmed life. We could see him distinctly without the aid of glasses, and his sublime courage held us spellbound. We became deeply interested in him and in his dangerous task and eagerly looked for his coming each morning. The chivalrous Japanese respected his bravery, and on the second day of his appearance in so dramatic a role bullets that ought to have bowled him over were intentionally "wide."

Under cover of darkness Kuroki's infantry crept through the millet fields and rushed the hill on the south and east. They climbed halfway up and then encountered the full force of a bullet storm that swept them down much faster than they could ascend. Hand grenades fell among them, adding to the work of destruction and demoralization.

At the foot of the slope they rallied and tried again. Fighting their way upward step by step in the teeth of a decimating fire, they succeeded in gaining the top and in driving out the Russians. But the latter were not yet beaten. Before the victorious Japanese had had time to intrench themselves the Russians came swarming back in increased strength and hurled the Japanese down. The repulse was but temporary. Reforming, the plucky Japanese surged back with fixed bayonets and were soon within twenty yards of the Russians. At this murderous range both sides fought blindly on in the darkness.

Soon the Russians had had enough, and they drew off, taking their wounded with them and leaving the Japanese in possession. At daylight the Russian guns got to work upon the hill from two sides. The shelling drove the Japanese from the ridge to the shelter of the pits at the base, but when darkness came and the Russian gunners could no longer see the garrison climbed to the top of the crest again. At midnight the Russians launched four regiments against the hill, which was held by about an equal number. Massing in the millet fields, a regimental band at their head, they dashed forward with a cheer.

As the leading companies climbed the grassy slope, already slippery with the blood of their fallen comrades, they opened out, the band at the same moment striking up the Russian national anthem. The music and the cheering reached the Japanese on the hilltop as with leveled rifles they awaited the Russian onslaught. They had no band, but they determined not to be outdone.

All the buglers were summoned, and they blew a fanfare, while the men in the trenches sang snatches of patriotic songs or shouted defiance at the oncoming foe. The leading line of Russians reached the Japanese trenches and died there with the sound of their country's anthem ringing in their ears. So, too, died line after line of men that hurled themselves impotently against the wall of Japanese infantry.

But the Russians came on anew and unflinching, those behind clambering over the wall of dead that impeded their progress. Yet another human wave flung itself against the blood dyed bayonets of the defenders, this time with such impetuosity as to sweep everything before it. Into the breach thus formed poured others, and soon the whole ridge was a mass of struggling combatants. Rifle fire was no longer effective. Bayonet and clubbed gun had now to decide the issue.

The fighting line was fed and refed, fresh victims being drawn into the bloody maelstrom. This roll of the dead mounted up through hours of terrible conflict until at last the full force of the Russian attack had spent itself and there came a lull. Back over the hill whence they had come went the now shattered Russians, Japanese bullets claiming fresh toll at every step. It was the last effort of the Russian infantry. They troubled the hill no more, but from the succeeding daylight until dusk Russian shells plowed its surface afresh, thinning out the gallant garrison still holding it.

After Kuropatkin had drawn off finally I visited the hill. The dead still lay where they had fallen. Three long lines of Russian infantry in extended formation were lying on the reverse slope, with alignment as perfect as if they had been drawn up for parade inspection. On the Japanese side, huddled up, were heaps of slain, Japanese and Russian.

In the center of one group was a drummer, he that had led the charge. He was a mere lad, scarcely out of his teens, and a mass of fair hair clustered in wild profusion on his uncovered head. His drum lay beside him, the left arm encircling it protectively. The head of the drum was so bullet riddled that it resembled a sieve. General Kuroki, when he inspected the spot where so many brave men had perished, paused reverently before this little group. For a moment or two he stood there looking at the drummer and his drum. Then he raised his hand in salute to the dead. It was a brave soldier's tribute to the gallantry of his foe.

"BAT" MASTERSON'S FEATS.

Incidents In the Well Known Gun Fighter's Career.

William Barclay Masterson of Hot Springs, Ark., better known as "Bat," all round "bad man" and "gun fighter," who has been appointed a deputy United States marshal for New York city, is credited with twenty-eight notches on the handle of his "gun," indicating that he has killed that number of men, says the New York World. Bat doesn't do much talking about these episodes in his career, contenting himself with saying that whatever shooting he has done has been in the strict performance of his duty.

"I don't believe in fighting except when I have to," says Bat.

About 1877 he was made marshal of Dodge City, Kan., by the class of gamblers known out there as respectable, which meant that they would not stand for a crooked game. Bat's task was to drive out the crooks, and he proceeded to do it in the most efficacious manner at the point of his gun. There were running street fights, in which pistols rang out like musketry.

Bat cut the first notch in his gun at a settlement known as Adobe Wall, on the Canadian river, and it was only the fact that his gun spoke an instant before the other fellow's that saved his life.

That same night a band of Indians led by a renegade negro attacked Masterson and his men and were not put to flight until Masterson put a bullet through the negro's heart.

Masterson's greatest record as a man killer was made when six cowboys killed his brother in Dodge City, Kan. Then they took possession of a dance hall and began to "shoot it up."

Into this crowd walked Bat.

"All of you get out of here except the fellows that killed my brother," he commanded.

There was only one movement, and that was for guns, but Bat killed the six cowboys.

FOWL BREEDING AT SEA.

German Captain Thus Enjoys Fresh Eggs Every Day.

It is not every man who goes to sea that can order freshly laid eggs as a companion to his breakfast bacon, but Captain Thaprich of the German oil tank steamer Burgermeister Petersen has, by a careful study of the genus poultry, been able to do so, says a dispatch from Baltimore.

On board he has a flock of chickens that receive much of his attention, and as a reward for his kindness they average twelve eggs a day from November to May.

Captain Thaprich's fad is the breeding of chickens and homing pigeons. The homing pigeons are carefully raised from the egg—all on board, with the exception of two pairs to start the family, were hatched on the ship.

An incident of the instinct of the homing pigeon was developed on board the Burgermeister Petersen on a trip to Baltimore. The other day, when the vessel was off Hog island, making her way to the capes, the pigeons took an exercise fly, and all but one returned. At 3:30 p. m., after the ship had steamed seventy miles from the time the bird was missed, it came on board.

As the ship had made almost two sides of a right angled triangle from the position where the bird was lost, it was assumed that it had flown across the land, cutting off the ship and joining it when thirty miles inside of the capes, having left when the steamer was fully forty miles up the coast.

Stoessel's Apology.

["Judge us with clemency," said General Stoessel in his report to the czar.]

"Judge us with clemency, O czar!
A crushed and broken garrison!
We are not many, for the scourge
Was bitter ere the fight was done,
And if we did unloyally
Judge us with clemency.

"Judge us with clemency, O czar!
For months the skies shed molten rains;
Look in the faces of thy troops,
Pale 'neath the blood and powder stains,
And if our course offendeth thee
Judge us with clemency.

"Judge us with clemency, O czar!
In those days surpassing dread
The sick and wounded manned the guns
And worked like animated dead,
But if defeat be treachery
Judge us with clemency.

"Judge us with clemency, O sire!
We who at last surrendered when
None but the wounded could defend
Our garrison of dying men!
By those black days of agony
Judge us with clemency.

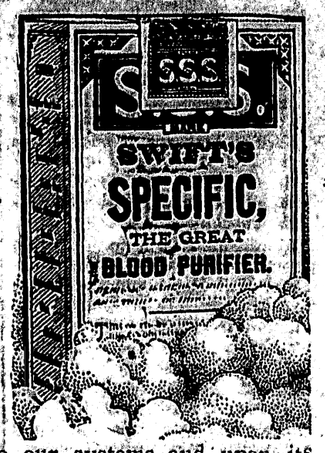
"In that baptism of fire, O czar
Our honor doubly is restored,
And like a fair won laurel wreath
I bring to thee my broken sword,
Broken in action honorably—
Judge it with clemency!"

—Wallace Irwin in New York Globe.

WHEN YOU THINK OF A BLOOD PURIFIER THINK OF SSS

The Most Popular and Widely-Known Blood Purifier

GUARANTEED PURELY VEGETABLE



This is the season that tests the quality of your blood, and if it is not good, then evidences of it will begin to show as the weather grows warmer. Carbuncles and boils, pimples and blotches, and numerous itching and burning skin eruptions will make their appearance, and are sure indications of bad blood. If spring-time finds you with impure, sickly blood, then you are in poor condition to withstand the strain upon the system which always comes at this time of the year. A failure to look after your physical welfare now, by purifying the blood and toning up the general system, may result in a complete breaking down of health later on, and you will find yourself weak and run down, with no appetite, and a prey to indigestion and nervousness. It is poor blood that makes weak bodies, for it is this vital fluid that must supply vigor and strength to our systems, and upon its purity rests our chances for health. Any impurity, humor or poison in the blood acts injuriously upon the system and affects the general health. It is to the morbid, unhealthy matter in the blood that chronic sores and ulcers are due. The pustular and scaly skin eruptions so common during spring and summer, show the blood to be in a riotous, feverish condition, as a result of too much acid or the presence of some irritating humor or acrid poison in the blood. A large per cent. of human ailments have their origin in a polluted, diseased blood, and can only be reached by a remedy that goes into the circulation and uproots and expels the poison and restores the blood to a healthy, natural condition. If you have any symptoms of bad blood, and are thinking of a blood purifier, then think of S. S. S., a remedy with a long-established reputation and that has proven itself to be a specific in diseases of the blood, and a superior tonic and system builder. S. S. S. contains no mercury, potash, arsenic or other mineral, but is composed exclusively of vegetable ingredients, selected for their medicinal properties and gathered from nature's store-houses—the fields and forests. The thousands who have used S. S. S. and know from experience what it will do in blood troubles, do not need to be reminded of a blood purifier now, for they know no better can be found than S. S. S. If you are thinking of a blood purifier, think of S. S. S., which has been sold for nearly fifty years, while the demand is greater now than ever in its history. No remedy without merit could exist so long and retain the confidence of the people. Write us if in need of medical advice, which is given without charge.

Springfield, Ohio, May 10, 1903.
On two occasions I have used your S. S. S. in the spring with fine results. I can heartily recommend it as a tonic and blood purifier. I was troubled with headaches, indigestion and liver trouble, which all disappeared under the use of a few bottles of your great blood remedy, S. S. S. My appetite, which was poor, was greatly helped, I can eat anything I want now without fear of indigestion, and my blood has been thoroughly cleansed of impurities and made rich and strong again. As a tonic and blood purifier it is all you claim for it.

I have used your S. S. S. this spring, and found it to be a blood purifier of the best order. My system was run down and my joints ached and pained me considerably, and I began to fear that I was going to be laid up with Rheumatism. I had used S. S. S. before, and knew what it was, so I purchased a bottle of it, and have taken several bottles, with the result that the aches and pains I had are gone, my blood has been cleansed and renovated, my general health built up, so that I can cheerfully testify to its virtues as a blood purifier and tonic.

MATHENY & LLOYD.

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, March, 11.—Wheat—Nervous feeling characterized trading at the opening. The sentiment, however, seemed inclined to bearishness influenced mainly by lower prices at Liverpool. The factor which offset foreign weakness was the government crop report issued late yesterday. This report generally is considered quite bullish, as indicating the wheat reserve of the United States is 21,000,000 bushels less than a year ago. The opening was irregular. May started at $1.13@1.12¾. July, 92½@92¾c. Soon after the opening May under selling pressure from longs reacted to $1.12½. July to 92⅝c. The market then developed a moderate firmness. July rallying to 93¼c. May to $1.13½. Much strength was due to the situation in the northwest, where receipts were comparatively samll. Late in the day, however, the sharp decline in the southwestern markets started an attempt at general selling by commission houses here. Buyers were few, owing to brilliant weather. As a result May declined to $1.11⅛, July to 91⅛c. May closed 1⅞@2c lower and July off 1⅛c.

Corn—Despite the weakness of wheat and the bearist tenor o fthe government crop report, corn held remarkably firm. Trade was active, the volume of business yarger than for some time past. A strengthening feature was the reported purchase of 2,500,000 bushels by a leading bull. Firm cables and large clearances were also factors. The close was practically unchanged.

Oats—The break in wheat was the principal factor in this market. Another bearish bearish influence was the estimate of large receipts Monday. Provision interests had liberal offerings.

Flour—Market quiet and easy. Winter patents, $5.00@5.10, straights, $4.75@4.90; spring patents, $5.00@5.40; strights, $4.40@4.90; bakers, $2.40@3.75.

LIVESTOCK.

Chicago, March 11.—There were enough cattle here to day to make a market, prices mostly nominal. The close for the weeks finds beef steers firm on the basis of $3.40@4.40 for poorer class of light weights, $4.50@5.20 for medium grades; $5.25@6.25 for good to extra. Prices largely 10@15c higher than a week ago.

Hogs—There was good local and shipping demand at yesterday's range of prices, closing a trifle higher than a week ago, with the bulk of sales at $4.95@5.05.

Sheep—There was fair demand at unchanged prices.

ST. LOUIS MARKET.

Oats—May, 30¼c.

Corn—Receipts, 187,000 bu; exports, 79,000. Spot firm; No. 2, 53½c elevator and 54c afloat; No. 2 yellow and No. 2 white, 54¾c. Options closed ¼c net higher; May, 54⅛c.

Oats—Receipts, 123,000 bu; exports, 1,000. Spot steady; mixed, 37½@38½c; white, 38½@39c; clipped white, 39@41c.

FINANCIAL MARKET.

New York, March 11.—Yesterday's sudden spurt of seven points in Chesapeake and Ohio led to excited conjecture as to the cause and was a stimulating influence in to day's market. Supposition as to the basis of the movement was conflicting. Yesterday's rumor of an intended increase in dividend to 4 per cent was accounted as a factor and gave rise to the general theory of the policy of more liberal dividend disbursements on the part of railroad companies under Pennsylvania management. The Pacifics, Reading, the Canadian group, metal stocks and some others which have been prominent in the week's speculation were heavy throughout. Profit-taking in them affected sentiment and increased the disposition to realize toward the last, so that the closing was decidedly irregular, and with net changes mixed in spite of a great show of strength during the session. Closing quotations:

Money on call nominal; no loans. Time loans easy; sixty and ninety days at 3@3¼; six months at 3¼@3½.

A FLOATING SHIPYARD

Steel Craft to Repair Uncle Sam's Fighting Ships.

DERRICK FOR LIFTING BIG GUNS

Any Injury Above Water Line Can Be Repaired by a Complete Movable Shop Being Built at Brooklyn—Practically Nonsinkable and Can Be Towed Anywhere.

What Naval Constructor William J. Baxter calls "a miniature floating navy yard" will take its first plunge into the waters of the East river in a few weeks, says the New York Times. For months work has been pushed on this strange craft at the Brooklyn navy yard, but not until the other day did the nature of the vessel get beyond the knowledge of the naval constructors and navy yard officers. The design and construction is credited to Constructor Baxter, who has the building of the battleship Connecticut in charge, although he insists when questioned that it was only an idea worked out under his supervision.

When the craft is completed the United States navy will be in possession of a floating repair shop the like of which the world has never seen and one which, according to the officials at the navy yard, will make it possible to repair second class cruisers, gunboats and torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers in the bay off Thompkinsville, N. Y., the rivers or in any place where there is water deep enough to anchor.

In recent years a naval officer at the navy yard pointed out that the American navy has been growing so fast that it is almost impossible to handle repair work in the navy yards. How to meet the problem has been under discussion throughout the navy for several years. The new repair craft, it is believed, will end the trouble for all time.

The vessels of the north Atlantic fleet will have begun to arrive in northern waters from winter maneuvers when the craft is launched, and, according to one of the constructors, the "floating navy yard" will begin work the minute it takes the water, repairing the smaller cruisers and torpedo boats. This same constructor said that he was certain that the floating navy yard would pay for its construction and equipment within four months. In a year or two, he added, floating yards would be scattered all along the Atlantic, gulf and Pacific coasts and at the principal insular ports, especially the Philippines.

"The floating navy yard" is about 120 feet long and 40 feet wide and will draw about six feet of water. It is built entirely of steel, and every inch of space has been utilized. At one end will be a big steam derrick capable of lifting twenty tons, while at the other end will be the boilers that will furnish steam to operate the dynamos, air compressors and the derrick. Amidships will be the navy yard proper.

Practically every machine used in repair work will be installed somewhere in this space, including a miscellaneous assortment of electrical and pneumatic lathes, drills, slotters, shears, punches, etc.

The apparatus will be capable of taking off the smaller guns on battleships and armored cruisers and of making minor repairs to the superstructure and interior of great ships. There is nothing pertaining to the smaller craft except a hole below the water line that the little navy yard cannot attend to. The roof will be fitted with a number of big skylights, which can be removed at will and through which ordnance and parts of ships can be lowered to the shops.

The floating yard will not be self propelling, but will have to be towed. This is one of its great advantages, since to construct a self propelling craft would cost at least five times as much as one that is to be towed, and it would require about three times as long to build it. Again, the propelling machinery would take up a great deal of room.

The craft is practically nonsinkable and can be towed anywhere and for any distance by any steamgoing vessel. Should this one prove a success larger ones will be built.

When Constructor Baxter was asked what name was to be given to the floating yard he replied:

"I don't know, but how would Handy Billie strike you?"

"Handy Billie? What's that?" he was asked.

"Oh, that's navy talk for a man who knows how to fix anything," he answered.

Money In Onions.

Fortunate is the farmer who has plenty of onions. He can get a dollar a bushel for them, with a prospect of higher prices before long, says the Hartford (Conn.) Times. The onion crop in Europe was a failure last year, and a great many are being sent over the water at the present time. Twenty thousand bushels were sent in one consignment from Sunderland, Mass., a few days ago. It is estimated that there are now about 90,000 bushels in the Connecticut valley which can be bought by people who have "got the price." They are said to be mostly owned by four men in the vicinity of Springfield.

Casualties In Japanese Navy.

According to the recent investigations of the medical department of the imperial Japanese navy, the total number of killed or wounded up to the end of last September amounted to 2,321 persons. Six hundred and fifty-five of these were slightly wounded, 556 severely wounded, 1,022 killed and 88 missing.

HOLDING THE LIGHTHOUSE

[Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McClure.]

As a sergeant in a Federal infantry regiment I had been detailed to take charge of a lighthouse on the North Carolina coast, and one evening during the last year of the war I was driven inside by seven Confederates, who had landed from a sloop near by and whose mission was to destroy the light. I was well provided with arms and ammunition, and as they came within shooting distance I opened fire and wounded one of them. All of them at once moved to the left to get out of range, and five minutes later there was a demand that I surrender. In case of refusal they would burn me out.

As the lower door was a stout one and loopholed for musketry and as there was no drift stuff within a mile of us to make a fire, I was not greatly worried over the appearance of the men and their threats. I made the door secure and then climbed to the top of the lighthouse, and just as I got there the sloop from which the soldiers had landed and which had been left to take care of itself was floated off the beach by the rising tide and soon passed beyond recovery. The situation now presented was a rather curious one. I was a prisoner inside the lighthouse, but the gang were prisoners outside as well. We were on an island, and there was no escape for them without a boat.

I expected to be fired on when I lighted the lantern, which was in an exposed position, and, sure enough, they opened on me with their muskets and shaved me pretty close three or four times. I got down safely, however, and then had only the door to look after during the night. I got another demand to surrender, but only laughed at it, though two of the men crept softly up and gave me several bullets through the loopholes, which might have finished me had I been standing erect.

The fellows could not tell whether I had been hit or not, and about 9 o'clock I heard them crawling up again to listen. As one of them rubbed against the door I fired through a loophole, and the yell which answered the shot was proof that I had wounded another. What the unwounded would do during the night I could only guess at and be on the watch to checkmate. The two wounded men must have suffered a great deal, but the leader was a determined fellow and bound to carry out his orders.

Soon after the wounding of the second man I heard the whole party moving away, and it was a matter of two hours before they returned. They had searched the shores for driftwood and brought back loads of it.

Of a sudden, while I was listening with the closest attention, the loopholes were stopped up with sticks thrust into them, and then the supply of firewood was heaped against the door. There were three men engaged in this work, and all at once I threw the door wide open and blazed away at them with my revolver. All went down, and before the others could come up I had the door shut again. It was not until two hours later that I knew whether I had killed or wounded the three. I had managed to clear the loopholes and was on the alert for any further move when one of the gang crawled as near as he dared and shouted:

"Say, you in there, we want to surrender!"

"How many of you?" I asked in reply.

"Seven, and five are wounded and suffering. The sergeant will be a dead man unless we can get help pretty soon."

"Where are the two unwounded men?"

"They swam off to get the sloop and have either been eaten by the sharks or drowned. Say, sergeant, for heaven's sake don't go back on us! We were sent to capture and destroy the lighthouse, but we have got the worst of it and are ready to surrender to you."

I looked on it as a plot to take me off my guard and refused to open the door. Twice more before daylight the same man came and again appealed to me, but he received the same answer. The ones I feared were the two unwounded ones. I believed they were in ambush instead of going off after the boat.

When daylight came I went upstairs and looked down from the parapet and soon made out that there was one man dead and no others about except the wounded. Before descending and opening the door I made them disarm, and just as I was going out to them my assistant, who had been away ever since the morning before to secure fresh supplies, ran his boat upon the beach. We took the wounded in hand together. The sergeant in command of the squad had bled to death during the night of his wound, and some of the others were in a very weak condition. We bound up their hurts and made them as comfortable as possible, and that afternoon a Federal craft was signaled, and she ran in and conveyed the living to Georgetown as prisoners of war.

About the same time the Confederate sloop came driving back with the tide and was easily secured. Several surprising discoveries awaited us. She had about $500,000 of Confederate money aboard, which was entirely worthless as currency, but we also found $900 in gold and greenbacks, jewelry which afterward sold for over $600 and a number of firearms of a new pattern.

Sore Throat Remedy.

Make tea of sage, strain it and put in equal parts of powdered alum and borax until it "cuts" or causes a greenish brown substance to settle at the bottom. Use the clear part, gargling often if there is great soreness. This is a fine remedy if made right. It can be bottled for future use. Sage tea, hot, taken alone, is very good for a cold.

To Whiten Flannels.

Flannels that have become yellow from being badly washed may be nicely whitened by soaking two or three hours in a lather made of one-quarter of a pound of soft soap, two tablespoonfuls of powdered borax and two tablespoonfuls of ammonia, dissolved in five or six gallons of water.

MATRIMONIAL

POST-COREY.

For some months past Rev. Martin Post has been the acceptable pastor of Joy Prairie Congregational church, serving the people in an excellent manner. Since the death of his wife and children, some years since, his life has been rather lonely as he has occupied the parsonage alone and taken his meals with his parishioners; but this was not always so to be, for March 8th he led to the matrimonial altar Miss Carrie Corey, of Delphi, Ind. Returning next day they were tendered a reception at the pleasant home of Joseph Williams, where all had an opportunity to become acquainted with their pastor's new companion for life. The lady is a person of rare accomplishments and admirable traits of character and without doubt will make an ideal pastor's wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Post and the good people of the Joy Prairie church and congregation are all to be congratulated, while many in other parts of the county and state also will take pleasure in tendering most cordial good wishes.

The groom is a brother of the eloquent pastor of the Congregational church in this city.

RAILROAD NEWS NOTES

Derailment in Local Alton Yards —Reduction of Force in Alton Freight Office—Personal Mention

A derailment occurred in the Alton yards Saturday morning about 4:30 o'clock, which delayed the fast meat train, No. 80, several hours. It had just arrived in this city, pulled by engine No. 319, and in charge of Engineer Rosenhone and Conductor Pearis. The train was left standing on the main track while the engine pulled off on business track No. 1, to get a car which was standing there. The engine was running along on the track toward the car when a sixty-pound rail broke under it, throwing the tender from the track. Word was immediately sent to Roodhouse and extra engine No. 321, with Engineer Hanson at the throttle and Trainmaster C. P. Bemis in charge, was sent to this city and arrived here about 6:20. The extra engine was attached to the meat train and proceeded north with it at 6:40. The local freight train arrived in the city shortly after the fast freight left and the local engine pulled the derailed engine on the track again. Engine No. 319 departed for Roodhouse about 8:30 with Trainmaster C. P. Bemis on board. The rail which caused the accident was found to be broken into thirteen pieces.

Andre & Andre

The first prize, the dandy Buck's Junior Range, was won by Genevieve Sehy. The second prize, the hand painted cup and saucer, was won by Beulah Smith. The third prize, the pretty picture, was won by Ila Weatherford.

HERE ARE THE "TEN REASONS WHY" THAT WON FIRST PRIZE

Ten reasons why mama should use the Buck's Steel Range:

1st. Because Buck's Ranges are made with the best material that can be procured, as all the covers and top of stove are made of the best grey iron, which is the strongest and most durable for stoves and ranges and the tops are made in sections, which allows for expansion and contraction.

2d. Because Buck's Ranges are made by the most skilled and experienced workmen.

3d. Because Buck's Ranges are full and heavy nickel plated, which makes them very beautiful and attractive in appearance.

4th. Because Buck's Ranges have white enamelled oven doors and racks, which makes them very easy to keep n eat and clean and which also retards and reflects the heat.

5th. Because Buck's Ranges are lined throughout with heavy sheets of abestos, which retains the heat inside the range, which makes it bake quick and even and which would otherwise be lost by radiation.

6th. Because Buck's Ranges have genuine duplex grates by which she can burn hard coal, soft coal or wood and also has a hot blast fire box which admits air through the sides and bottom grate and linings which makes the most perfect combustion for coal and also keeps the lining from burning out and saves one-third of the fuel.

7th. Because Buck's Ranges have extra large enameled reservoir with flush top, which gives one-thirdmore room on top of range.

8th. Because Buck's Ranges have extra large steel ash pan; with a ball which will hold all the ashees made in 24 hours' use; the damper rod is so protected that it will not ward or burn out; the feed pouch is the very largest and cleanest and most convenient made.

9th. Because Buck's Ranges have a nice large warming closet, with roll top, which gives full opening when open and also tea shelves on back for holding tea pot and plates.

10th. Because Buck's Ranges are sold under a positive guarantee by the Bucks stove and Range company to be perfect in every way and give the very best satisfaction if the Range is set to a chimney which is not defective.

THESE "TEN REASONS WHY" WON SECOND PRIZE

1st. Every user of a "Buck's" range enthusiastically recommends it to all their friends. If they were not everything that they were claimed to be they would have been found out.

2d. It is really a "thing of beauty" therefore must be a "joy forever" as it is made of the most durable material.

3d. The arrangement of the oven is far superior to that of any other range, as it not only keeps the heat in, but also reflects it, thus doubling its value. The white enamel lining gives its cleanliness and purity.

4th. The oven is so ventilated as to make it bake more evenly. It is so enameled as to make it sanitary, clean and satisfactory, also a money saving oven.

5th. It is so braced as to prevent deflection and give strength to the key plates. It also has an arch which is used where great strength is needed.
